Introduction

The Seattle Study Club was founded in 1999 as a group of individuals who shared a common interest in the study of the natural world. Over the past decade, the club has grown significantly, and we are pleased to announce our tenth anniversary symposium. This event will provide an opportunity for members and guests to hear from leading experts in various fields of study, including biology, geology, and environmental science. The symposium will be held at the Rainier-Carson-Bell Building, a beautiful and historic location in downtown Seattle. We hope you will join us for this special occasion and enjoy the company of fellow members and guests.

The symposium will feature a variety of presentations, including keynote addresses, panel discussions, and poster sessions. The keynote addresses will be given by Dr. Robert Winter, Dr. Peter Winale, and Dr. John West. The panel discussions will be moderated by Dr. Charles English and Dr. David Thompson. The poster sessions will be held in the Rainier-Carson-Bell Building, and we encourage all members and guests to participate. The symposium will also include a reception and dinner on the evening of January 29th. We hope you will join us for this special occasion and enjoy the company of fellow members and guests.

The symposium will be held at the Rainier-Carson-Bell Building, a beautiful and historic location in downtown Seattle. The building is a landmark of the city and has been the home of the Seattle Study Club since its founding in 1999. The symposium will be held in the main auditorium of the building, which is a large and comfortable space for the event. We encourage all members and guests to arrive early to get a good seat. The symposium will be held from 9:00 AM to 5:00 PM on January 29th and 30th. We hope you will join us for this special occasion and enjoy the company of fellow members and guests.
